Current Comment By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

The New Deal's so-called purge has little, if anything, on Mountain View's city council, which for rather obscure reasons is asking for the resignation of Chief of Police Louis Gray.

President of the Peninsula Peace Officers association, Gray has a reputation for competence; and one thorn in the side of sundry citizens of his community seems to be that he is "too strict" in law enforcement, directing, for one thing, a vigorous campaign against slot machines and pinball games.

Observers familiar with the political set-up thereabouts advance, as the chief reason for Gray's impending dismissal, the fact that he earned the approbation of county Democratic leaders when, after his own defeat in the primary election, he threw his support to Democratic Sheriff George Lyle. This does not set well on the stomachs of the city fathers in a town predominantly Republican.

It seems to me, however, that injecting national party lines into the ramifications of small town politics is carrying things too far, and that a nice little city like Mountain View would like law enforcement. And until better reasons are advanced for the council's action I, for one, will continue to consider its attitude extremely silly.

Some will say I'm sticking my nose into a situation that doesn't concern me. To them I'll say that competence, rewarded by the "gate" because someone or some group does not like the cut of its owner's jib, always concerns me, and should likewise concern everyone else.

Ripping a page from Fuehrer Hitler's book, Benito Mussolini is busily organizing "oppressed" minorities here and there in French possessions and protectorates. The press, young fascists, and a delegation of Hitler's own have been shouting for "solidarity with oppressed brothers" in French territory. It's the same old story, and Benito couldn't have chosen a better time to re-publish it. With the French nation on the point of complete demoralization, captained by a capitulating Premier, the Italian government will doubtless put into formal demand the concessions now asked informally by frenzied Fascist and Nazi rabble.

To date the Munich "peace" has proved pretty expensive for the democracies, and it appears that definite European peace is still a long way off. It would probably have been less expensive to have called Hitler's bluff over Czechoslovakia at a time when England, France, Russia, and the Czechs themselves would have been forced to cooperate in chastising and putting down the upstart; when they had the unity and strength necessary for such a campaign.

I may be a calamity howler, but I believe, with Litvinoff, that the democracies did not cancel a war through capitulation to Germany; they merely postponed it. And Germany grows stronger from day to day.

In the armament race Uncle Sam is taking a front seat, ostensibly in preparation to defend our shores. Personally, I think our enlarged navy, in addition to protecting our own shores, will also be called upon to protect U. S. trade in the South American republics—and dictatorships. Maybe the fleet will act as convoy to vessels bearing Argentine corned beef in safety to the shores of the U. S.

If, during the next 20 years, the U. S. plans to uphold the Monroe Doctrine, we're all due for a lot of headaches, and maybe worse.

Club Directors Hold Important Meet Wednesday

The Kiwanis board of directors met last evening and considered several important matters.

Dr. W. I. Merrill, chairman of the underprivileged child committee, will be in charge of the annual Christmas children's party on Dec. 20.

Assisting in the good work will be Ira Abbott and Hans Hansen, arranging the program; Guy Farley and Joe Gomes, tree committee, and Ralph Hyde, decorations; and to Carl Field, Russell Kennedy and J. O. Leverton is allotted the important feature of gifts.

Ira Abbott was also designated to act for the Kiwanis club in arranging with the grammar school P. T. A. for the annual joint card party to be held some time in January.

The question of sponsorship of the Campbell Boy Scout troop which the club has been giving for several years has been under discussion for some time and was again talked of at this time. Members feel that too few boys are reached by this work, although exceedingly worthy, and are considering adoption of some other form of youth activities. Cyril Collett, chairman of boys and girls committee, stated that there are other local groups willing to take over the sponsorship if the club decides to make a change.

Grammar Lads Trim Junior Hi

The Campbell grammar school basketball team stepped out of its class yesterday when it played the team of the David Starr Jordan junior high of Palo Alto, which has an enrollment of 800, and came off victorious with a 19-14 score.

The boys playing on the local team were Dan Miranda, captain; Arthur Jacobson, Kenneth Leverton, Salvador Di Salvo, Byron Tonascia, Mike Batinich and John Kerkich.

Coach Cyril Collett reports that Frank Gibson, coach of the opposing team, expressed appreciation of the splendid sportsmanship displayed by the Campbell boys, and hoped that athletic relations between the schools could be continued.

Campbell Youth Honored at State

Ray Barbano, 20, San Jose State college junior registered from Campbell, was admitted last week to the college's newest honor fraternity, Epsilon Nu Gamma, engineering society.

Organized at the beginning of the quarter, the society is limited to engineering majors in good grade standing.

The neophytes will bring the total membership to 21.

Barbano is taking a pre-engineering course. He graduated from Campbell high school in June, 1932, where he went out for track.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barbano of 738 Rincon avenue, Campbell.

FAREWELL TEA PARTY CANCELLED

The farewell tea which had been arranged for tomorrow (Friday) afternoon in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, has had to be cancelled at the request of Mrs. Townsend. She is moving to San Jose earlier than anticipated and finds it impossible to give the afternoon.

She sincerely regrets having to forego the opportunity of seeing her friends and they are very sorry that she cannot express to her their appreciation of her work in the community and extend good wishes for her future.

The home economics club of Orchard City Grange will meet at the home of Mrs. Melissa Smith, 41 South Third street, tomorrow, Dec. 9. Important business will be considered, and the club chairman, Mrs. Leone Keesling, urges every member to attend.

American Trust Only Bidder for Old Hyde Plant

The former Hyde Cannery and adjoining property, purchased by the Campbell Packing company a few years ago but held under mortgage by the American Security company was sold at public auction Monday at the county court house, and became the property of the American Trust company, the only bidder.

This sale was conducted by M. Edgar Kennedy as trustee for the securities company, and W. W. Jacka of Rea, Free, and Jacka represented the purchasing company.

In the afternoon under a chattel mortgage sale the machinery and fittings were auctioned by G. W. Clanton, and again the American Trust company was the only bidder.

Fred J. Oehler, vice president of the American Trust company stated that negotiations for resale are already under way.

Unlimiteds Win, 130's Lose to Petaluma High

By Don Martin

Playing their first games of the season before a record crowd in the new gym Saturday evening, Campbell high 130 and unlimited basketball teams divided a pair of contests with Petaluma high.

Campbell 130's dropped their contest 13-5, while the unlimiteds won 28-20.

Campbell 130's were outplayed as well as out scored by the invaders. The locals were so weak on offense that not a single point was scored in scrimmage. Campbell's five points were derived from successful free-shots by Borg, Goldstone and Ban. However, Coach Ralph Noddin's five displayed a strong defense that held the fast Petaluma quint to 13 points.

Campbell's unlimited team clicked perfectly to pile up a 23-8 lead by half-time. Coach Noddin used the second string during most of the second period. The invaders specialized in long shots which they "swished" with amazing accuracy.

Center Sandy Heidegard was high point man, scoring 10 points. David Farley and Mitchell Lobrovich tallied 8 and 9 respectively, while George Azevedo and James Gardner made two each.

Campbell teams will play the Japanese club in a couple practice games Friday evening. The locals will play their first Santa Clara Valley Athletic league contest early in January.

Camp Fire Girls Entertain Parents

The Fire Makers of the Tanasi group of Camp Fire gave a dinner for their parents and guardians Saturday evening, which was followed by a Council Fire.

Preparing and serving a dinner is one of the requirements for merit points and the girls who "carried off" for this occasion deserved all the credits which such an event warrants.

Long tables were arranged in the form of a letter E with guests seated around the outside and the girls of three groups on the inside. A low arrangement of toyon berries with numerous varied colored tall tapers were used as decorations. Cutely constructed little dolls were seated at intervals along the tables.

At the conclusion of the dinner Elizabeth Howe, presiding as chairman, presented Geraldine Lloyd who extended a welcome on behalf of hostesses.

Betty Jean Jurras had the pleasure of presenting a pin to Ira Abbott who has done so much to help the Camp Fire groups, and Marilyn Toy did the same for Mrs. Guy E. Farley, as president of the Women's Service club, the pin to pass on to future presidents.

Marilyn Anderson read a short history of the origin and development of the Camp Fire movement and Alice Modry, a brief mention of some of the great women of recent generations.

In token of their appreciation of the wonderful work which Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend has done as leader of Camp Fire and the hours of untiring effort given to the girls, she was presented with a gift, Elaine Jeffers having that pleasure.

During the supper and program the girls sang several of their Camp Fire songs and had provided copies of their paper, "Smoke Signals," Volume 1, Number 2, as souvenirs for the guests.

Mrs. Townsend presided over a Council Fire at which a group expressed their desire to be Wood Gatherers and the Fire Makers were awarded silver charm bracelets for work accomplished.

Other ceremonies of the order were exemplified, closing with the recessional.

Dr. G. B. Husted who had been at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. H. Hyde for two weeks convalescing from two operations which he underwent in San Francisco, returned to his home in Modesto, Monday.

Music Program Enjoyed Mon. by Country Women

The winter season was accented in the decorations in Community hall Monday where the Country Woman's club met for its first December meeting. Several varieties of cotoneaster, bamboo and an unusually attractive basket of toyon berries were used to advantage.

During the business hour presided over by Mrs. F. L. Howes, three new members were added to the roll, Mrs. Ernest Fahler, Mrs. Roy Magnuson and Mrs. Ben Sewell. Plans for a pageant to be presented by the County Federation to increase the student loan fund, were explained.

Members were urged to make a special effort to attend the next meeting, December 19, the Christmas tea. Gifts of jam or jelly and toys to be used for grammar school children and Christmas baskets will be brought at this time.

The club voted the annual gift of $10 for Christmas cheer for the war veterans in hospitals.

The president appointed as a committee of investigation for chairs, Mrs. A. D. Rice, Mrs. A. W. Johnson, Mrs. D. W. Clark and Mrs. Rose Hanger.

Mrs. A. W. Wellington, chairman of the program committee introduced three musicians from the San Jose State college who had graciously given of their time to come out and present a musical program, Miss Anzie Machado, pianist; Miss Bette Turner, soprano soloist, and Kurt Berndt, violinist.

Their selections were (a) "Spanish Dance" (E minor) Granados; (b) "The Sea" (a descriptive composition) Palmgren, Miss Machado; (c) "With a Heart That's Free," Robyn; (d) "When Love is Kind," Moore; (e) "The Hour," Albert; and in response to a request, "The Kiss," Beethoven, Miss Turner; Concerto, D Minor, First and Second Movements, Mr. Berndt.

It was a truly delightful entertainment.

Mrs. Wellington was aided in plans and decorating by Mrs. C. W. Toy, Miss Winifred G. Grizzle, Mrs. M. A. Ross and Mrs. R. G. Archibald.

Growers Plant 1 Ceases Reception

Plant No. 1 of the California Prune and Apricot Growers association closed its season for reception of fruit yesterday. A few of the crew of 20 men who have been employed for several weeks have been retained to pack fruit for re-shipment to San Jose where it is packed in cartons.

The remainder of the male crew and the women who have been grading and storing the dried fruit have been released.

Manager William Schrader reports more tonnage has been handled with the increased storage and equipment provided by the new $20,000 addition, and the greater crop of prunes harvested this year.

MRS. WM. OHLEN HOSTESS AT CARDS

Mrs. Lillian Ohlen entertained the members of her bridge club at her home on Winchester road last evening.

Present to enjoy the card playing and refreshments were Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. Julius Bachman, Mrs. Herbert Gardner, Mrs. Percy Dunlap, Mrs. Richard Knappen, Mrs. Albert West and Mrs. Horace Lea.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held at the home of Mrs. West next Wednesday evening.

On Sunday, Dec. 18, the Campbell high school chorus, directed by C. P. Klassen, will give a vesper concert for a union meeting of the churches and community at the Methodist church.

Miss Mabel Horn returned Friday from a month's stay in Iowa where she was called on the death of her sister.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—In Europe, a few years ago, this writer met a friend who had just interviewed Gen. Ismet Inonu, who is today Turkey's new dictator, succeeding Kemal Ataturk, who died recently. "He's the smartest hombre I ever met," said my friend. "He talked to me for two hours, frank and honest, looking me right in the eye and never holding out on anything. He was charming and brilliant and he didn't ask me not to print anything. I thought I had a great story. But, when I started to write it, there was just nothing there. I saw him several times after that, and realized that he was a master in heart-to-heart talk which left no commitments whatsoever. I saw cagey diplomats kissed off just as I had been. The man is a marvel of brains and ingenuity."

The small, fragile, deaf, ingratiating General Inonu is the hero of the Turkish army, premier until a year ago, when he was mysteriously benched by Kemal Ataturk. There were rumors that he was engaged in international negotiations of such subtlety that he found it necessary to keep out of office and off-stage.

It was in 1920 that young Colonel Ismet joined Mustafa Kemal in Anatolia. By 1922, he had driven the Greeks out of Anatolia and Smyrna and in this period and thereafter he was Kemal Ataturk's chief military aide. He added to his laurels, when, at the 1923 Lausanne conference, he ran rings around British and Italian diplomats and won for Turkey virtually its demands.

He was one of few men who retained the confidence of Ataturk to the end. He was a firm and exacting and, at times, ruthless ruler of the army, and is said to lack none of the traditional specifications of the iron man.

It is apparent that Ismet Inonu is intent on keeping Turkey diplomatically liquid, that he fully realizes the bargaining power of Turkey's hegemony over the Moslem bloc, and that he probably will use this and other strategic assets in making some shrewd bargains.

TALL, austere Sumner Welles, a deft precisionist in career diplomacy, is merely undersecretary of state, but off-stage he's the key-man of a critical international encounter and a policy draughtsman in whose hands a chart of our South American procedure is taking shape. He helped initiate and has diligently fostered the "good neighbor" policy in Latin-America, and his radio address urging a get-together in the Western hemisphere received a good press in those countries. But a bad press in Germany.

His plea for joint defense against "any threat of attack" is in interesting contrast to his speeches of a year ago, when he appealed to the "nations of the world for a new world order, based on justice and law." He weighs the actualities of trade, finance and the collective safety and solvency of the Western world.

Something like a picture of a western league of nations begins to emerge as the great imperialisms turn toward the vast raw material storehouse of South America.

After his graduation from Harvard in 1914, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the navy, helped him enter career diplomacy. In his early thirties, he was high commissioner to the Dominican Republic, the author of "Naboth's Vineyard," a two-volume study of that country. He was made ambassador to Cuba by President Roosevelt in 1933. He became undersecretary of state last year.

ROBERT DONAT, the English actor on the up-take in "The Citadel" and other films, made so many unsuccessful tries at the screen seven years ago that they called him "Screen Test" Donat. A competent actor, he met hard luck and was all but desperate, as something always went wrong. One day, in what he was sure would be his last try, the director told him to register despair. The irony of his merely imitating despair sent him into demoniac laughter. Alexander Korda, in another room, heard him.

"Sign that man up, whoever he is," said Korda. "That's a great performance." He had what it took, and they routed him right through to fame and riches. He won by challenging a homely "Do not despair."

Danger of 'Jewish Problem' for United States in German 'Purge'

Resentment of American People Aroused by Hitler's Harshness; Opening of Gates to Refugees Might Introduce Disturbing Influence.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Press service wires and cables and radio from abroad have been clogged for several weeks with hundreds of thousands of words about the plight of the Jews in Germany; about the abuses visited upon the Jewish race by the European madman, Hitler, and his camp followers; about the humanitarian pleas of our own President, Mr. Roosevelt, for appeasement of the conditions. There has been what I believe to be one of the greatest waves of emotion, waves of resentful national sentiment, that this country ever has known. I recall none like it, none as overwhelming, none as deep-seated as that through which we have been passing, and in my opinion our nation should have resented such outrages.

While no one with a heart can fail to grieve to a greater or less extent about the indescribable harshness, the unforgivable meanness of Hitler, it occurs to me that we should begin to temper these waves of emotion somewhat. There are other factors to be considered, factors and consequences of the thing that is now called "the Jewish problem," that require calm reasoning. In other words, let us say that America is and must remain for Americans, and charity, while it is sweet, cannot be exploited, or carried to extremes simply because we feel a sadness for a group upon whom an injustice has been sent. Like millions of other Americans, I am hopeful that some way will be found to aid the Jews who are being driven out of Germany, but I am unwilling that we, as a nation, shall create additional and unwarranted difficulties for ourselves by extending a helping hand. Therefore, the United States must not be the goat.

It is one thing to render aid. It is quite another thing to inject into our own bloodstream of national life additional elements without knowing what those elements are. After all, the damage is something that we did not cause; the injured are a people who have no knowledge of our way of doing things and may never co-operate with us, and we must prevent being dragged into the other fellow's fist fight.

'Purge' of German Jews an Exposition of Mad Power

I suppose there are very few persons in the United States who do not believe that Hitler's "purge" of German Jews constitutes a blot upon modern civilization. I know that leading Germans in the United States wish there were ways and means to stop the action. There can be no defense of the outright seizure of $400,000,000 of money from the Jews of Germany under the guise of a "fine" although there is a lesson of warning in it. Likewise, none can convince me that Hitler has kept his underlings free of graft and corruption in this or other dictatorial actions. Those in power in Germany are garnering the gold for themselves—or else we are witnessing the activities of angels whose purposes we, as human beings, are unable yet to understand. I do not believe they are angels. The "purge" of German Jews, therefore, must be accepted as the exposition of mad power.

Some weeks ago, I had occasion in these columns to talk about the so-called "peace of Munich." I said then that Hitler was not through; that there would be further exhibitions as he and his henchmen maneuvered this way and that in order to maintain the iron grip of a dictator. The drive on the Jews is a part of that general scheme, a movement to maintain a support for the dictatorship, for, it is known, should Hitler's grasp be broken at any place or at any time, there would be a bloody revolt in Germany again.

Those causes, however, do not help us in the solution of the Jewish problem. The unwanted race is simply the victim and a knowledge of how its members have had the sufferings brought upon them adds little or nothing to the search for a method to protect their lives. Where are they to go? That is the real question. Hitler doesn't care where they go or what happens to them. Some one else has to lead the way. Our nation has joined in that leadership, and rightly so. But we have policies and principles and traditions which must be respected. If, in our eagerness to help the German Jews, we should transgress those established principles, then we, as well as the Jews, will have to pay a penalty.

'Jewish Problem' for United States Might Be Result

The whole situation is one which may contain "a Jewish problem" for the United States. It is one out of which a political issue may grow. It is to be remembered that religion became an issue in a presidential election not so many years ago. That shows that such things can sprout even in the United States. If it happened in the case of the Catholic religion, it can happen in the case of a racial question, especially with regard to the Jewish race.

We ought not kid ourselves. There are many persons swearing allegiance to the United States who do not like Jews. Those persons may be otherwise good citizens, but they distrust a Jew because he is a Jew, making no distinction between individuals. It is stating nothing new to say that there has been almost a steady undercurrent of criticism of Mr. Roosevelt from certain quarters because Jews have been given prominent places in the New Deal. I think it is not stretching the imagination at all, therefore, to point to the Jewish problem as one that may become involved in politics at some future time, although I hope it never does.

Mr. Roosevelt has proposed removal of some of the immigration restrictions as a means of bringing into this country more German Jews than our immigration laws now permit. In so doing, he verged on politics himself. Any one familiar with the debates on immigration policies in the early 1920s must recall the severity of that battle. The issue was whether we, as a nation, were going to be haven for all comers and just hope that they would do things the American way, or whether we should restrict the number coming here to live to a number which could be absorbed into our national life. Labor unions and most employers favored the restrictions, and when we think of the number of unemployed in the last five or six years—people fed and clothed by the federal government—it appears that we allowed too many to come in. It seems we could have excluded all of them to advantage.

Only Congress Can Let Down Immigration Bars

Behind the scenes of the immigration restriction also was a determination on the part of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, then a senate power, to prevent introduction into the United States of all kinds of "isms." The senator foresaw the spread of radicalism by means of entry of the European backwash and rubbish. There was not much discussion of this phase because our government did not want to offend any foreign nation. It was a basic reason, however, and it is too bad that it was not given more public consideration.

Fortunately, there can be no change in the number of foreigners admitted from any nation without action by congress. The United States can take only so many—something like 30,000 a year—of those purged Jews, unless congress amends the law. And when I say it is fortunate that there must be action by congress before there can be a change in policy, I mean no inferences.

I believe Mr. Roosevelt is eminently correct when he says that there must be a "homeland" established for the Jews. The British tried to make Palestine that sort of a base, it will be remembered, but they failed because Arabs don't like Jews. This experience then would seem to point to the necessity for the Jews being colonized quite alone. If the United States can extend help in doing that job, there ought to be no criticism of the course, even if it involves financial assistance. It would be a charity worthwhile, and a charity that would not involve us later on. I repeat that I believe there is real danger in letting down the floodgates for immigration whereas the other method would seem to be a humanitarian action again demonstrating our national sympathy for a downtrodden people.

Refugees Likely to Create A Disturbing Influence

In consideration of whether we ought to let a deluge of refugees enter, I cannot help thinking of a possible spread of trouble. For example, if our definite national position of protest against Hitler's policies should bring retaliation, every Jewish refugee allowed in this country would be clamoring for the United States to take revenge on Germany and Hitler. Their influence would be great because they could tell what happened to them and give an idea of what is happening. You and I and millions of others would believe first hand information. There is no doubt about it. The germ of trouble could be incubated ten times more rapidly; instead of staying out of European troubles, we would be pushed in deeper and deeper.

As far as relations between Germany and the United States are concerned at the moment, all that can be said is that the United States has let the world know of its disapproval. When Ambassador Wilson was recalled, it was just the same as saying to the world of nations that Uncle Sam hasn't any respect for Hitler.

Sagging Chair Seats.—To tighten the cane on cane-bottomed chairs, brush to remove all dust, then wash with salt water and place in the open air to dry.

Colored Soap Bubbles.—A drop of prepared vegetable tinting added to the water used for making soap bubbles will give them a different color and thus delight the children.

More Desirable.—If you cannot afford a good wood when buying furniture, it is wise to keep to the painted sort. The painted furniture gives a dainty and colorful appearance that is more to be desired than cheaper grades of stained wood.

Sugar Cookies.—Sugar sprinkled over the tops of cookies before putting them into the oven forms a sweet crust and makes a richer cookie.

Heat Tea Leaves.—Tea tastes better and goes much further if, when you open a new packet, you spread the tea on a sheet of clean paper and place it in an oven that is just warm for about ten minutes.

Use Darning Cotton.—Darning cotton is better than the more slippery thread for marking perforations in paper clothing patterns.

When Cords Wear Out.—Worn extension cords on lamps or other electrical fixtures should be replaced promptly. The cost is small compared to a burned down house or a severe shock. When the wires bend too easily where they enter the connections or when the outside silk covering wears out, it is time to buy new cords.

Tips on Gluing.—The wood must be dry and free from oil, paint or other coatings that fill its surface pores. Joint surfaces must fit together smoothly, without "hills and valleys." Always sand and brush dust off surfaces to be glued. Spread glue over both surfaces as a thin film—never thickly.

'Roughest Point' on Pacific Coast
The "roughest point" on the Pacific coast is guarded by the unique Point Concepcion lighthouse. The beacon light came from France by way of Cape Horn in 1856. It weighs four tons, and it is so designed that all the reflection is centered in a bull's-eye of 130,000 candlepower. It flashes every eight and a half seconds and can be seen for 22 miles. The fog horn works automatically by the aid of either of two gasoline-engine-driven compressors. It gives two blasts every two minutes that can be heard for a distance of 18 miles.

Used Card Money

The first paper money used in America was issued by French authorities at Quebec in 1685, according to an official of the Detroit Coin club. Merchants and traders accepted it, since Canada was in desperate need of small change. Crude bills were made from ordinary playing cards, cut into four pieces, each piece being stamped with a fleur-de-lis and crown, and signed by the governor, intendant and clerk of the treasury. Card money circulated in Detroit for many years and proved more valuable than some of the beautifully engraved notes which followed it.

The Muses

The muses were characters in Greek mythology—the daughters of Zeus and Mnemosyne, and patrons of literature, art, and science. Their names were Calliope, who was in charge of epic poetry; Clio (history); Euterpe (lyric poetry); Melpomene (tragic poetry); Terpsichore (dancing and choral poetry); Erato (love poetry); Polyhymnia (religious poetry); Thalia (comedy); and Urania (astronomy). As objects of worship, says London Answers magazine, they were classed among the water-goddesses, and the springs and streams of Mount Helicon were sacred to them.

Flying the National Banner

United States flag custom says that the national banner is not to be left on the staff after dusk. However, the flag flies both day and night over the Capitol; United States forts, during a battle, also fly the colors 24 hours a day. It was during an attack on Fort McHenry that a night-flying flag inspired Francis Scott Key to write the "Star Spangled Banner."

Shoe Measure Method

The length of a shoe is measured in English inches, beginning at the fourth inch. Children's shoes are rated in size from No. 1 to No. 13, graduating at a rate of one size for each additional one-third of an inch. Adults' shoe lengths start with No. 1 also, where the children's lengths end, and continue to 13.

In many European countries, it is the custom in some large households for all the men and women servants to greet the master and mistress each morning by kissing their hands, notes a writer in Collier's Weekly.

Professor Brace continued his testimony under the questioning of Mr. Flood:
"What time was it when you came out of the tunnel?"
"Quarter past twelve."
"And what happened then?"
"A car passed us, then slowed down."
"Did you observe the number?"
"Yes, Miss Sentry said—"
"Never mind what she said. What was the number?"

Mrs. Sentry thought: They take so long to say such a simple thing. Why doesn't he just say, "I saw Mr. Sentry leave his office and drive home?"

But question and answer went maddeningly on.
"What did you do?"
"Followed the car to the Sentry home."

"Where did you last see it?"
"It turned into the Sentry drive."

"What did you do?"
"Miss Sentry and I stayed in my car, in front of the house."

"Hear anything?"
"Steps on the gravel from the garage toward the house."

"See anything?"
"I saw the light from the hall as the door opened."

"Anything else?"
"After about five minutes an upstairs light was turned on. About ten minutes later it was turned off again."

"What then?"
"Miss Sentry went into the house."

"At what time?"
"One o'clock, or a little before."

"Have you since seen that car?"
"Yes."

"With that number?"
"Yes."

"Where?"
"In the Sentry garage."

"Did you at any time that night see who was in the car?"
"Yes, a man."

"Did you know him?"
"No, not then."

"Did you see his face?"
"Yes, when he first passed us. I had to put on the brakes to avoid hitting him, and a street lamp was shining on his face."

"Do you now know who he was?"
"He was Mr. Sentry."

Mr. Flood turned to Mr. Falkran.
"Your witness, sir," he said.

Mrs. Sentry looked breathlessly at Mr. Falkran, fearing on the one hand that he would allow this deadly evidence to go unchallenged; on the other that his questions would involve Barbara. Yet even at that cost he must do something. For here was the peg upon which the State's whole case must hang.

But Falkran said, "No questions!"

And instantly, like a clap of doom: "The State rests," said Mr. Flood.

During the brief recess, Mrs. Sentry, too shaken to move, stayed in her seat. She was not suffering; but she was so tired! Professor Brace had left the court room without having looked toward them, and she whispered to her son:

"Go catch him, Phil. Tell him we know he had to do it. Tell him we understand, that we don't blame him!"

Phil nodded, hurried out. Then Falkran came to her, and behind the mask of a smile which he wore for the world to see, he said, "Mrs. Sentry, I expect you were surprised I did not cross-examine; but the hour is late, and I wish to call one witness before adjournment today, so that I can leave the jury with something to think about tonight."

She said in low tone: "I see. But isn't that the key of the State's whole case? Proving he was down there that night?"

He said reassuringly: "Be easy. Trust me. We will give them a better key."

And a moment later they rose while the Court and jury resumed their places; and then Mr. Falkran, briefly, made his opening. Circumstantial evidence, he said in calm, assured tones, was only to be trusted when the evidence in question was capable of but one explanation, of but one interpretation. The evidence submitted by the State was elaborate, detailed, well presented, well selected.

"But you will see," he said, "how the truth which we propose to reveal to you fits into this pattern without a misfit anywhere."

And he called the dead girl's father to the stand.

Falkran dealt with the old man gently, winning his confidence with simple questions; but at length he led Mr. Wines to examine that collection of photographs which had previously been submitted to the New Jersey hotel clerk.

"I wish you would pick out all the photographs of your daughter which you find there," he directed.

The old man, after a little, selected two.

Falkran picked up from the clerk's desk those previously identified by the New Jersey hotel man as portraits of Miss Wines. "What about these?" he asked.

"They ain't her."

"Sure?"

"I'd ought to be, I sh'd think. Sure I'm sure."

"Not your daughter?"

"No."

Falkran smiled contentedly.

"Now, Mr. Wines," he asked, in a new tone, "did your daughter write to you from Boston?"

"Yes, certain!"

"How often?"

"Most generally every Sunday."

"Did she write you while she worked for the firm of Sentry and Loran?"

"Yes, she did."

"How often?"

"Once, anyway."

"Have you that letter?"

District Attorney Flood rose hurriedly, approached the bench. Falkran joined him there. They spoke in low tones. The old man on the stand took a letter from his pocket and held it in his hands, waiting. After a moment Falkran turned and took it from him and handed it to the Judge. The Judge read it, spoke to Flood. Falkran smiled and with the letter in his hand turned back to the witness.

"And What Happened Then?" Asked Mr. Flood.

"Who wrote this letter?" he asked.

"She did."

"Your daughter?"

"Yes."

Falkran said to the Court: "I offer the letter." It was marked. He read it aloud, standing in front of the jury box, facing them.

The letter was for the most part without significance. The dead girl had written happily of her work, hoped that even though it was only temporary it might lead to something permanent. But one paragraph Mr. Falkran read slowly and impressively, in his fine trained tones, with a maximum effect, with his eyes upon the jury. He read:

"I don't like Mr. Sentry! He's cross if you make the least mistake. But Mr. Loran is nice, awfully jolly. He asked me to go to dinner with him tonight. He said there wasn't any harm in it, but of course I didn't go."

A stir ran through the court. Falkran waited a moment for silence, then finished reading the letter.

"Your witness," he told Flood.

The District Attorney declined to cross-examine. Falkran nodded, and he said: "It is near the hour, Your Honor. Mr. Sentry is to be our next witness. I suggest a recess till tomorrow morning."

Court adjourned.

CHAPTER VIII

Dan Fisher's assignment at the trial was not to cover the actual testimony—that was recorded by reporters working in relays, using those swift abbreviations meaningless to anyone but themselves which with a good newspaper man take the place of shorthand—but to write the morning paper story. Mr. Sentry was on the stand all Saturday forenoon; and Dan wrote for the Sunday paper:

Arthur Sentry, on trial for his life and charged with the murder of Agnes Wines, on the witness stand yesterday admitted that he fired the shot which killed Miss Wines.

He testified that the shot was fired by accident, in the dark, when he surprised an attempt to rob the safe in his office.

He admitted leaving the dead girl's body where it fell. He admitted taking the money from the safe and burning it in the furnace at home. He admitted throwing the death weapon into the river behind his garage where it was subsequently found by the police.

He denied any misconduct with Miss Wines. He testified that it was another woman who spent two nights with him in a New Jersey hotel last August.

Mr. Sentry's testimony created a sensation. The court officers had difficulty in keeping order until Judge Stanton warned the spectators that if there was further disturbance the court would be cleared.

Piranha, Most Vicious Jungle Fish, Lurks in the Rivers of South America

Probably the worst enemy of any living thing (in the South American jungle) lurks in the river itself—the piranha. There are piranhas in almost every South American river and they are literally devils, writes Stuart Martin in Wide World, London. I have seen three varieties—the green-and-gold ones of Paraguay, the shiny gray specimens of the Amazon, and the green-and-black spotted demons of the Araguaia and Xingu. The natives eat them, but the quality of their flesh is nothing to brag about.

For a wounded ox or horse to fall into the river means certain death; it is also fatal for a human being to get among a shoal of piranhas, especially if there is any sore or wound on his body. Piranhas can scent their prey far away, and go literally mad at the taste of blood.

It is a sickening spectacle to see these fierce fish conducting a mass attack. The water around the unfortunate animal that falls into their clutch becomes a whirlpool, a maelstrom of death, boiling and foaming as the blood-crazed piranhas rush to the feast. They eat the flesh off the living victim until they reach the bones; soon nothing but the skeleton remains.

The Indians catch piranhas fairly easily by baiting their hooks with a bit of meat or newly-dead fish. When the creature is jerked ashore it is still snapping viciously. As an example of the ferocity of the piranha I may say that it is a common custom to slice off the heads with a sharp knife—and even when this is done the jaws continue to snap at you! These demons are usually between 18 inches and 2 feet in length.

The Word Yard

The word yard comes to us from an Anglo-Saxon word, "gyrd," meaning a rod. In ancient times, says London Answers Magazine, the yard was regarded as equal to the circumference of the human body. Then Henry I decreed that it should be the length of his arm. This is interesting when we recall that most of us can measure off a yard of string, etc., by stretching it from our nose to the extreme of one arm fully extended.

SERVICE SELLS ITSELF

That celebrated declaration, "The world will beat a path to the home of the man who makes a mousetrap better than anyone else," states more than at once meets the eye.

It is a shrewd affirmation of the American principle that service to the public brings its own reward, and is a test of merit.

The man able to give the public a better egg-beater, a better-edged razor, performs that service. And he gives a valuable clue to the reason why America is a land of change, why the old quickly gives way to the new. America's vote goes to the better job.

Only recently the Federal Coordinator of Transportation has completed a study showing that the principle behind the better mouse-trap is just as actively at work in modern transport. What the survey revealed, gives a clear-cut answer to what innumerable people are asking: "What accounts for the almost meteoric rise of trucks and trucking as the most important development in transportation in recent years?"

The answer to its newly won place in American enterprise lies where all success stories have been written—in the hands of the public. For the results of the federal inquiry, based on a survey of 35,468 shippers, found the latter's use of commercial motor carriers based on the following reasons: 73 per cent chose them because of faster service, 67 per cent because they provided store-door delivery, 61 per cent because of more flexible service, 27 per cent because less costly packing is essential, 25 per cent because of simpler classification of rates, and 67 per cent because the total cost is cheaper.

Whatever the public's attitude toward these fleets of highway commerce, it must be admitted they have won their place in American enterprise for the right reasons—on the basis of public service.

SHOP AT HOME

The season of holly and mistletoe is here! To the youngsters it bears the promise of excitement which Christmas-tide days unfailingly bring.

To their elders, touched a bit with that same Christmas fever, it carries this broad hint, "Shop early—and buy at home!"

That livelier bustle in the community which spells a happier and more prosperous Yuletide comes, first and last, from the dwellers in that community!

There are bountiful stockingsful of gifts in the local stores. Shoppers need little re-telling that a purchase at home during this season makes a double gift. First, to the recipient, and second, to the community. For investment in gifts at the local merchants brings more jobs to more local employees, enables these deserving enterprisers better to weather the coming year, and starts business activity humming at the place where it sounds best and does most good—at home. For no longer is there need for shoppers to go far afield in search of Christmas treasure trove when the efficiency and variety of mass distribution can double for Kris Kringle in bringing a wealth of items to every community and to every pocketbook.

For these reasons, we urge, "Shop early—and shop at home!"

UTOPIA POSTPONED

Soviet Russia now announces a momentous shift in policy which should lay the hopes of those who believe a hammer and sickle can give birth to miracles denied the mortals who must live under the stars and stripes.

Until the present about-face, the gospel according to St. Marx stated that with the coming of socialism, the state would wither away, leaving society a happy, anarchistic Utopia.

But now it's goodbye to all that. Instead of withering away, the Russian party platform writers now find the state is going to be here for some time, with its disappearance indefinitely postponed.

This means, in plainer language, that the people of Russia can look forward indefinitely to supporting the most gigantic state apparatus the world has ever known, with its vast army of petty bureaucrats regulating trade, commerce, industry, agriculture, housing, the cinema, the stage, and all phases of social life. Add to this, a disproportionately huge police force also to be supported, and it will be little wonder if some day Russia's collectivized workers starting seeing red in earnest! Promisers must eventually produce—or default.

AS DISNEY DOES IT

From a caustic eastern columnist and from the picture magazines, California has been taking it on the chin as the land of the screwy and the home of the rave.

But hold on there! Isn't it true that if much-maligned California should set herself the task of turning the spotlight on the dizzy-go-round of certain events in other states—and the zany characters who launch them—she could draw up a pretty fair bill of indictments?

Without even guiding it, the spotlight today falls upon Disney, Oklahoma, and as Disney does it, makes California look like a piker.

First, the town staged a whoopie dictator contest with awards going to the lustiest bel-low-buster. Next, for a novelty unknown to modern man, Disney went back to primeval times to revive and stage a tree fight. Not to be outdone by these highfalutin high jinx, the town sheriff has been chaining offenders to a sturdy tree where they can serve their penance publicly.

Of course, this isn't all the news about Disney, which we have no intention of maligning. But it's a sample of what a spotlight can pick up when turned, for a change, at our sister states of the Union.

PAROLE ON RECORD

Too often, states Charles H. Upton, state parole and probation officer, parolees who violate the terms of their freedom win the notoriety, and those who faithfully abide by the conditions of their release win only—silence!

Here, then, are the lesser known and important facts of the matter. Of the men released by the United States Parole board last year, 93 per cent are making good as active, law-abiding citizens. Only 7 per cent welshed on their promises. Of the 463 persons given probation by the Federal Court in San Francisco during the past year, 462 hewed to the straight line, only one went crooked.

These statistics lack the drama that achieves headlines, but they do offer the significant truth that decency and honesty are in the enormous majority in our society—a fact that can stand considerable re-telling.

PENSIONS PLUS

Judging from many of the proposed measures to come before the state legislature when it convenes next month, pensions plus will be the order of the day.

No less than 350 plans have already been blue-printed by legislators in the hope of liberalizing California's present old age assistance program. All propose, in general, that the present maximum of a $35 monthly pension be changed—upward. Some suggest $40, and others more optimistic favor $50. Possibly they may have overlooked the fact that while the sky is the theoretical limit of what the state may contribute, Uncle Sam is keeping the lid down on the extent of his contribution to the pension. This is a maximum of $15 a month per person. Any increases beyond the present $35 a month allowance will therefore force Californians to dig down deep into their own pockets for the necessary wherewithal.

Can California take it? An expected deficit of some $60,000,000 for the two-year fiscal period ending next June casts a dampening outlook on the prospects of any sizeable increases.

Who knows? There's even a probability this Christmas spirit in the air may have something to do with the flood of suggestions for pensions plus. After all, this is the season of giving and politicians, being human like the rest of us, may be currently in the giving mood!

PAY DIRT

Prosperity is where you find it, and California farmers are showing there are more sensible ways than one of digging into pay dirt.

Faced with a forbidding 2,500,000 ton bumper crop in grapes earlier this season, they have succeeded in turning that potential harvest of "sour grapes" into a much more palatable dish.

With the statesmanlike planning of the pro-rate to put a floor under tottering prices and withhold an overplus from the market, planters have found that unity of action behind a sensible program brings a dollars-and-cents reward.

Now a giant super-crop has been brought under control, fresh grapes have been brought to the nation's markets at reasonable prices, and in wineries there will be no increase in stocks followed the new crushings.

There have been, it is true, a few bickerings and protests over the present program. Probably no humanly devised plan will ever satisfy all groups. Nevertheless, the unflagging efforts of agriculture to win itself a surer foothold on security through the pro-rate, through loyally supported marketing cooperatives, and collaboration with mass distributors to increase income, cut distributing costs, and ensure a longer selling season for produce, all these are winning new supporters daily.

They are proving themselves as essential to farmers as the disc and harrow, and just as worthy of care to keep them in running order, digging into pay dirt!

THE SHADOWS OF THE PAST

(Our Old School)

By BARBARA KNOWLES

It grasps so many memories
Within its tattered frame;
Its only tribute—loyalty,
And now its end is shame.

Once loved, it now stands empty;
Its gaping walls cry out;
Why should it be thus tossed aside?
Its vacant windows shout.

The rooms were once well-cleaned
each day
By hands that served with care;
But now the floor is torn apart,
No foot falls on the stair.

How proud they were when it was new!
They pointed to it then,
But now with scorn they turn away
(The fickle hearts of men)!

It served them all so faithfully.
Could this be its reward?
They tear the building limb from limb;
They pull it board from board.

It craves for naught except a tear,
A sigh from him who will—
Not much to ask for that which served
And would be serving still.

If they had not condemned this school,
Whose gloomy structures cast
A spell on those who gaze at this—
A shadow of the past.

Mongol warriors were feared greatly in the Middle Ages that Europeans opposing them

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Watch out for a drive at the 1939 legislative session, which convenes the first Monday in January, to revive the one-house legislative proposal!

First scheduled for submission to the voters at the recent general election, but dropped temporarily when it ran into a storm of public disapproval, the unicameral legislative plan will be brought to the fore again during the January session by leftist lawmakers seeking a labor-controlled legislature.

Current reports indicate that the one-house legislative scheme, which involves abolition of the state senate—largely comprised of rural legislators—will be fathered at the forthcoming session by Assemblyman Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, with Harry Bridges, stormy CIO leader, as its most active backer.

The strategy of the CIO labor leaders, it is reported, will be to submit the proposal in the form of a constitutional amendment, asking the legislature to refer the amendment to a vote of the people.

Undoubtedly, tremendous pressure will be brought to bear on the legislature to accept sponsorship of the one-house scheme to place it before the voters without recourse to the circulation of initiative petitions.

And California agriculture, together with all other groups interested in constructive government and legislative representation truly representative of all sections of the state, should be prepared for a show-down fight against the proposal.

If the one-house plan had been in effect at the last session of the legislature—and the senate had not been there to check foolhardy, extreme and visionary legislation—all California would still be paying the penalty.

For example, the 1937 legislature—except for the senate—would have enacted the Yorty "Little Wagner Act." And California in state supervision, would have duplicated the folly of a labor relations commission patterned after the now thoroughly discredited National Labor Relations board.

If the senate had not been in existence two years ago, Tom Mooney would have been pardoned by legislative decree; the criminal syndicalism act, in all probability, would have been repealed; untold millions in additional expenditures would have been voted; workmen's compensation insurance rates would have been drastically increased; the costly 70-car limit railroad bill would have been enacted; sit-down strikes would have been given legislative approval and taxes on farms and homes would have been catapulted to new highs.

California's state-wide farm organizations have reason to be proud of the fact that they led the fight for the present system of legislative representation, patterned after the federal system, when it was adopted twelve years ago.

For it has provided a system of checks and balances which has often been of tremendous importance in insuring sound legislation and in preventing crack-pot innovations that would have played havoc with the state's economic and social welfare.

Under the present legislative set-up, the assembly, for the most part, is a city-dominated house—chosen on a population basis.

The senate, on the other hand, is chosen on a territorial basis, with no county having more than one senator, and no senator representing more than three counties. For the most part, it is a rural house.

The federal government has found this "balance of power" system of value in stabilizing the national legislature. And California has found it of vital importance in keeping state legislation on an even keel.

It should be maintained. And all California should unite to see that it is maintained.

In urging an early verification on non-resident cars Deems pointed out: "During the month of December department employees will be able to make these inspections in a period of approximately five minutes but if the owner waits until the actual license renewal period gets under way on Jan. 3 there may be considerable delay. We are urging owners of outside cars to get in this month in order that they will be saved any inconvenience."

France Deserts Great Britain To Find Safety With Germany

By Joseph W. La Bine

International

Appreciating the potency of a strong Rome-Berlin axis, Great Britain and France have long sought to keep Germany and Italy divided. Now this clever trick of diplomacy has boomeranged. With Hitler and Mussolini on top of the heap since Munich's peace treaty, the Rome-Berlin axis is very successfully building a barrier between London and Paris.

Until a few weeks ago Great Britain and Germany were comparatively close friends, while Italy busied herself hurling insults in the general direction of London. Now this is changed; the Anglo-Italian "friendship" treaty has been invoked and Prime Minister Chamberlain is willing to grant belligerent rights to Fascist Spain. During this display of affection, shrewd

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
France no longer needed him.

Adolf Hitler has found it convenient to abandon his British friends and turn to France. Thus it was not entirely unexpected when France announced conclusion of a pact with Germany to outlaw war between the two nations and recognize the permanent integrity of present Franco-German boundary lines.

On the surface this appears to complement the Anglo-German "no war" treaty signed secretly by Hitler and Chamberlain at Munich. A more likely result is that it will cause bickering between France and Britain; by making peace with Berlin, Paris has figuratively abandoned the protectorship of British aristocrats and financiers. At the same time, Britain's new peace with Mussolini arouses the indignation of Fascist-hating Frenchmen, who are now being vilified by the Roman press.

All these things point to a continued French and British policy of appeasing Hitler and Mussolini, even in the face of rising world resentment against the current German Jewish persecution. Still to come are French overtures for Italian friendship, probably to be paid for by the grant of new African colonies to Mussolini. Though both England and France deny it, observers are quite certain both will return war-mandated colonies to Germany.

The only new development which does not fit into this appeasement program is the Anglo-French decision to pool air forces and construct a fleet of 10,000 fighting planes by 1940. This contradictory move only emphasizes how little faith any modern European nation places in the sanctity of treaties, since the only reason for a "super" air fleet would be to combat the combined threat of an Italo-German fleet.

Defense

Though much talk has been heard of a multi-billion defense program in which the U. S. would place a steel ring around the entire Western hemisphere, President Roosevelt's armament requests are not expected to be that big. Closest estimates now available call for a $1,400,000,000 defense budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1. This would be $350,000,000 more than the current armament appropriation, most of the boost to be spent for army increases.

Not only does the war department want to lay plans for mobilizing an army of 1,200,000 men within a few weeks, but it also wants to start storing away equipment for this army. Other plans call for industrial mobilization education in factories which would be converted to processing of war materials. Still a third phase of preparedness calls for increasing our aviation force to 9,000 planes.

Peace organizations are expected to rally against increased armaments within the next few weeks, arguing that great defense precautions might lead to offense. Therefore the President will probably start publicizing the purpose of his remilitarization program immediately.

Much more pertinent to the average U. S. citizen is the problem of paying for increased armaments. Though Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau admits that new tax proposals are being held up pending completion of defense plans, it is expected the total budget, submitted to congress next January will run over $8,000,000,000. On this basis, and with anticipated revenues approximating those of the fiscal year ending last June, a deficit of about $1,000,000,000 may be expected during the government year starting next July.

Armament's share of the new budget must be paid with new taxes, and many congressmen advocate a two-year emergency income tax. This would pile a 10 per cent levy on top of the present income tax and provide $260,000,000 a year. Already trying to spike such plans, Utah's Sen. William H. King proposes to substitute "war taxes" in the form of a "nuisance" levy on luxury and semi-luxury goods.

Labor

Throughout the U. S. are about 2,500 manufacturing firms who share profits or managerial responsibility with employees. Proctor & Gamble workers contribute 3 per cent of their wages against a 5 to 15 per cent contribution by the management (based on seniority) and from this fund employees buy stock. McCormick & Co., Baltimore importers, not only share profits but organize workers to help run the business under a "multiple management" plan.

Such firms, whose number is increasing yearly, generally have little labor trouble. Example: the American Rolling Mill company of Middletown, Ohio, has never experienced a labor disagreement in its 38 years of operation. Even C. I. O., which organized the bulk of steel plants, was defeated 1,200 to 400 in one American Rolling Mill labor election.

If profit-sharing could be extended, most U. S. industrialists believe employees would be better satisfied, employment would become less fluctuant, and our national financial picture would be improved. In Washington, a senate finance subcommittee investigating the plan was recently told it would be "an unbeatable defense of the capitalistic system."

Members of this committee are Michigan's Sen. Arthur Vandenberg and Iowa's Sen. Clyde Herring. Their purpose is to unearth facts about profit-sharing merits and find methods of expanding it. The long range ambition is to make the working man more prosperous and more able to bear a share of the U. S. tax load. Thus, by splitting its profits, industry would help itself by winning a more equitable division of tax burden.

But an expansion of profit-sharing must come either voluntarily or through government insistence, and voluntary adoption of the plan by industry would be a long, discouraging battle of coaxing and education. Though neither committee member yet advocates it, both Senators Vandenberg and Herring have been feeling out sentiment on an "incentive taxation" plan. Under it the government would give tax credits to profit-sharing concerns, meanwhile penalizing non-conforming firms. Tax credits might be given on employers' social security payments, though the mere mention of such tampering with social security has already aroused protest.

WALTER D. FULLER
For depreciation, profit-sharing.

Most of the committee's witnesses have gone on record opposing the "incentive tax" because it would impose either reward or penalty for an employer's decision on a matter which should be entirely voluntary. Loudest supporter has been Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing company, who wants a more liberal tax treatment to stimulate re-employment. He also thinks industrial plant expansion will follow if employers are allowed to charge off more on depreciation than at present.

Labor's opinion has been expressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who naturally favors profit-sharing provided it does not tend to replace collective bargaining. This issue may be the battleground on which profit-sharing plans rise or fall, since collective bargaining is based on compulsion rather than co-operation. Before adopting the profit-sharing principle, many industrialists would demand that the threatening club of organized labor be removed.

Homemade dolls for collectors.

THIS Christmas it is not just the children who will receive dolls as gifts. Doll collecting is becoming a popular hobby for grown-ups. The most valued dolls are of whatever materials may be at hand and reflect the individuality of the person who made them. Rag babies of all kinds have an important place in such a collection. You will enjoy making the one shown here. Book 2 offered herewith also offers many suggestions for making and dressing dolls from scraps of materials.

If you want to make the stocking doll, clip these directions and keep them as this doll is not in either of the books offered here. The head and body are made of the foot of the stocking cut off where the heel begins, as shown. Stuff this part with cotton or bits of soft clean rags, sew across the bottom and then wind a thread around so that the toes of the stocking will form the head. Fold the leg and arm pieces lengthwise, stitch, turn and then stuff. Wrap thread around to make divisions for hands and feet. Sew the legs to the body, then add the skirt. The arms are sewn on top of the sweater piece and the sweater collar is turned down over this sewing.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—Sewing for the Home Decorator is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful Christmas gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Crazypatch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Uncle Phil Says:

And Even That Weakens

Half of our pastimes are pursued to escape boredom. It requires intelligence to fight against it.

You never lack a goal to strive toward in building a rock garden, for it never quite satisfies you.

Don't be a cloud because you can't be a star.

Say pleasant things about people. At least 8 per cent, under the law of averages, ought to be carried to them.

Every day, stop and think whether that day is going to be part of an unpleasant past.

Close to Disaster

A ship should not rely upon one small anchor, nor life upon a single hope.

Some men keep their ideals high by putting them on the shelf.

A velvety tongue, learning its power, can become too velvety.

That's Sincerity

A man doesn't marry a woman to reform her. He likes her just as she is.

There is a kind of man who gives his promise who comes around the next day and says his wife won't let him keep it.

Friend in Deed

The book, "Men Who Run America," says: "Some 20 years ago, when the Edison laboratories burned down, Henry Ford arrived in Orange, N. J., the following morning. He handed Edison a blank check. 'Fill that out for a couple of million,' he said, 'and if you need any more let me know.'"

In Spirit of Love

You will find as you look back upon your life that the moments that stand out, the moments when you have really lived, are the moments when you have done things in a spirit of love.—Henry Drummond.

SEE HOW FAST, NEAT, AND FIRM P.A.'S SPECIAL CUT MAKES 'EM

Ken Metz (left) goes on with: "Say, Prince Albert's special cut makes roll-in's so quick and easy, I could spin up a jimdandy cigarette even in the dark."

IT'S SO RICH-TASTING, WITHOUT BITE—I KNOW P.A.'S BETTER TOBACCO

And Karl Haller (right) adds: "One taste of Prince Albert's mellow, ripe richness and you'll say what I did 20 years ago—It's P. A. for my 'makin's' smokes from now on."

DON'T delay on that special offer to "makin's" smokers—just march up to your dealer's counter and say, "Prince Albert." You'll get choice, ripe tobacco, made milder and smoother by P.A.'s special "no-bite" process. It's "crimp cut" too—to assure fast rolling, slow burning, and a cooler, mellow smoke. Bobby—Couldn't help it (sobs). When I began to fall (more sobs) I didn't have time to take my knickers off.

Woogy—No, over my father's.

TESTED RECIPE
By Frances Lee Barton

ONCE upon a time there dwelt in the fashionable English watering-place of Bath a lady by the homely name of Sally Lunn—she ought to be the patron saint of all folk who gather together for an afternoon visit and refreshment. For she made a famous little tea cake which bears her name. But we've improved Sally's original recipe. Today we make our Sally Lunn more quickly—and more surely, with the aid of double-acting baking powder and cake flour, to give that feathery lightness so essential to hot breads.

Quick Sally Lunn
2 cups sifted cake flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup butter or other shortening; 4 tablespoons sugar; 1 egg, well beaten; 1 cup milk.
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream shortening, add sugar, and cream together thoroughly. Combine egg and milk. Add flour to creamed butter and sugar, alternately with milk mixture, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven (425° F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Makes 12.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Quivering nerves can make you old and haggard looking, cranky and hard to live with—can keep you awake nights and rob you of good health, good times and jobs.
What you may need is a particularly good woman's tonic—and could you ask for anything whose benefits are better proved than famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and thus help calm your shrieking nerves, give more energy and make life worth living again. More than a million women have reported benefit—why not let Pinkham's Compound help YOU, too, to go "smiling thru" trying times like it has other grateful women for the past 3 generations? IT MUST BE GOOD!
